AMIGO STUDIOS · OCEANSIDE

Amigo Studios: shared valuation and handover notes

Prepared November 2026 for Austin Faure (75%) and Pat Lang (25%). Confidential: this includes lease terms covered by the lease's confidentiality clause (§9), which allows them to be shared with prospective assignees. Please keep it between the owners, any incoming partners, and your advisors.

This is a working fact base for the two of us. It isn't an appraisal, and it isn't legal or tax advice. Every number traces back to the Mercury records (Mar 4 – Nov 10, 2026), the lease, or the equipment inventory. Where something is an estimate, it's labeled as one.

1. Where the studio stands

Mercury history starts March 4, 2026, so we have 8 months to work from and no prior-year history. That means seasonality can't be judged yet. Studio figures below cover studio rental only.

Per month (average)	Mar–May	Jun–Oct
Stripe (net of fees)	$8,514	$3,964
Peerspace	$892	$707
Subtenant ($1,046/mo, used for both periods since it continues)	$1,046	$1,046
Other (Swimply)	$80	–
Studio revenue	$10,532	$5,717
Running costs	~$6,655	~$6,341
Monthly result, before paying anyone to run it	≈ +$3,875	≈ –$625

Running costs (Jun–Oct, per month): rent + CAM + insurance $3,818 · utilities ~$870 · studio hosting (Jacob) ~$640 · supplies, software, platform fees, ads and other ~$790 · an estimated ~$250 for costs that don't run through Mercury (business insurance, tax prep, California $800 LLC tax). One-time items (a $700 door repair) and gear purchases are left out, and replaced with a small gear allowance (~$150/mo). Mar–May costs ran about $300/mo higher because the studio was busier.

What changed in June: Austin went from 60+ hours a week to about 1 hour a week. Studio revenue fell about 43% (Stripe about 53%). Costs are mostly fixed, so the monthly result went from about +$3.9k to about –$0.6k. The spring result included a lot of unpaid owner time. For reference, a part-time studio manager (20 hrs/wk) would cost roughly $29k/yr and a full-time one roughly $55–64k/yr (estimates).

Early November: Nov 1–10 brought in $5,161 of studio revenue (Stripe $3,523, Peerspace $1,040, subtenant $598). That's a strong start. A full November, plus prior-year Stripe and Peerspace history, would show whether October was a low point or the new normal.

2. What's being transferred

Equipment and furniture. This leaves out Pat's own podcast rig (cameras, mics, Rodecaster, switcher, and the mic boom). Values are estimates based on typical resale ratios, not actual sold listings, so treat them as ±30%.

Group	New cost	Used value	Quick-sale value
Lighting (MixPanel 150 ×4, MixPanel 60, Forza 500 kit, FS-300 ×3, Godox DP600 ×3, Forza 60B, projector, softboxes, tube lights)	$12.7k	$6.2k	$4.1k
Modifiers, grip and misc (C-stands ×5, floppies, domes, cart, hazer, green screens, neon sign, racks, steamer, etc.)	$5.8k	$2.4k	$1.5k
Furniture and decor (8 desks, couches, coffee tables, lounge and office chairs, makeup station, fridge, cabinets, plants)	$14.1k	$4.7k	$2.7k
Movable total	$32.6k	$13.3k	$8.3k

To check together: whether the two tube lights belong to the studio or to Pat's rig, and which photo/cyc gear (strobes, hazer, floppies, green screens) the podcast-focused studio actually wants to keep.

Build-out (stays with the space): the cyc wall, front-room dividers, the upstairs podcast-studio wall, soundproofing, the custom downstairs office, plus the slatted divider and shelves, wall panels, kitchenette and pendants. It cost about $60k. It's attached to the building, and under a standard lease it belongs to the landlord when the lease ends, so it has no resale value. What it's worth is the right to keep using it, which lasts only as long as a lease. Walls and soundproofing last far longer than a lease (assume ~15 years, so about $4k a year of use). That's ~$2.2k for the 6.5 months left on the current term. After May 2027 the space and its build-out are the landlord's, and the renewal is what lets the studio keep using them. The value section splits the renewal-term use evenly between seller and buyer: ~$7k for a ~2–3-year renewal, ~$10k for ~4 years, ~$12k for 5 years.

Systems: the website and booking system (custom booking, Stripe, GoHighLevel, Supabase), Bookabl, the Google Ads account, both phone numbers, and the Innago account. Since the studio is being rebranded, the Amigo name isn't used after hand off, and amigostudiosoceanside.com forwards to the new brand so search traffic carries over. The booking-system code is offered under a permanent license for the studio's use. Ownership of the code and the details are to agree.

Listings & reputation (built up over about 5 years, included and rebranded):

Listing	Rating
Peerspace, photo/video studio	5.0, 86 reviews, Power Host
Peerspace, podcast studio	5.0, 9 reviews, Power Host
ShareGrid (gear rentals and sales; Austin's personal profile)	94 reviews, 100% positive
Instagram @amigostudiosoceanside	~6.6K followers
Google Business Profile	5.0, 27 reviews

Renaming a listing or handle on the same account keeps its reviews and followers. A new account starts at zero. So their value depends on handing over the accounts themselves, through each platform's own process. Peerspace brings in about $8.5–10.7k a year from ~2 bookings a month, and at that pace rebuilding 95 reviews would take 4–5 years. The value below is what a new zero-review listing would likely lose in bookings over its first one to two years. ShareGrid covers gear rental rather than studio bookings, and no ShareGrid income runs through the studio account, so it's valued at little or nothing unless the gear-rental side continues. A "formerly Amigo Studios" line on the listings for a few months keeps the older reviews credible.

Subtenant: $1,046/mo through Innago (about 18% of current studio revenue, covering about 27% of the rent). They're staying. The landlord's consent to the sublease should be written into the new lease.

3. The lease, in plain terms

- Landlord: Live Wire Investments LLC. Premises: 825 South Coast Highway, Oceanside. About 1,750 sq ft. Gross lease.
- Rent: $3,691/mo base + ~$65 CAM + ~$62 insurance = $3,818/mo all-in (≈ $2.18/sq ft). That's roughly in line with asking rents on the S Coast Hwy corridor.
- Ends May 31, 2027. There's no renewal option or rate in the lease, so a renewal has to be negotiated. Past increases have been about 4% a year. A 4% renewal would add about $150/mo; a market-rate renewal (~$2.40/sq ft) about $380/mo.
- Who's on it: three individuals, Jeremiah Idema, Austin Faure and Beau Trembly, jointly. Jeremiah and Beau are past partners who moved out of state around late 2024 and have no stake in the current business. The current LLC isn't named on the lease.
- What that means: the space can't move with the LLC by itself. The handover needs a landlord-approved new lease (or assignment and amendment) to the buyers' entity (Pat and/or his team), combined with the renewal past May 2027, that releases Austin, Jeremiah and Beau. The 2024 First Amendment did exactly this when it released Brandon Gleed, so there's a template. The landlord will likely ask for the new tenant's financials and possibly a guarantee.

4. Value

> ### Expected price for Austin's 75%: ~$26k

The whole studio is worth ~$35k. Pat already owns 25%, so Pat and/or his new partners buy the other 75% (75% × $35k ≈ $26k). Depending on lease length and bookings, the price for the 75% could land between ~$20k and ~$45k.

How the ~$35k studio value adds up (renewal of ~3–5 years, studio kept running):

Piece	Value	Basis
Gear and furniture, in use	$17.8k	Movable equipment and furniture, valued as set up in a working studio (Pat's rig excluded)
Build-out use	$10.2k	~$2.2k to May 2027 + half of ~4 years × ~$4k a year of use on the ~$60k build-out
Listings & reputation	$5.0k	Peerspace ~$4k + Instagram ~$1k: bookings a zero-review start would lose in its first 1–2 years
Open, booking studio	$1.5k	Subtenant in place, phone numbers, working booking system
Whole studio	$34.5k ≈ $35k
Austin's 75% (× 75%) = the price	$25.9k ≈ $26k

What moves it within the range:

- Shorter renewal (~2–3 years) → ~$20k for the 75% (whole studio ~$26k): gear at used value ($13.3k), build-out use $7.2k, listings $4k, bonus $1.5k.
- 5-year lease and spring-level bookings returning → ~$42–49k for the 75% (whole studio ~$56–65k): gear $17.8k + build-out $12.2k + about $26–35k for earnings. At today's run-rate the studio makes no profit before anyone is paid, so earnings add nothing to the expected value; they only count if bookings recover.

Cost to recreate: ~$113–150k. What Pat and/or his team avoid by buying instead of building from scratch (gear, the ~$60k build-out, rent during setup, website and booking system). It's a setup cost, not a price.

No minority discount applies: the 75% sells as one controlling block, and with Pat's 25% the buyers end up owning 100%. Cash and liabilities (card balances, prepaid bookings, taxes) are settled separately at closing. The Google profile (5.0, 27 reviews) isn't counted yet and may add a few thousand.

Proposed price: _____

5. Deal-structure options

- Purchase of the 75% interest, or an asset purchase by the buyers' entity (Pat and/or his team). Either works. Since the LLC isn't on the lease, an asset purchase into that entity plus a new lease directly with the landlord may be the simpler route. Worth a quick check with a lawyer and CPA.
- Cash at closing. The simplest option.
- Seller note. Part paid at closing, the rest over 12–18 months with interest, secured by the equipment. Typically starts once the new lease is signed.
- Earn-out tied to studio revenue. For example, a share of studio revenue above the Jun–Oct baseline (~$5.7k/mo) for 12 months, capped, measured from Stripe, Peerspace and the bank.
- Referral fee. If Austin keeps referring work, a percentage of fees on referred jobs, separate from the price.

6. Next steps and open items

1. Landlord conversation: a new lease or assignment to the buyers' entity past May 31, 2027, at what rent and term, releasing Austin, Jeremiah and Beau. The renewal is expected; this is the paperwork, and its length sets the build-out figure.
2. Revenue history: prior-year Stripe and Peerspace data (Nov 2025 – Feb 2026 and spring 2025), a Stripe breakdown of rental vs services, and the full November 2026 numbers.
3. Equipment walk-through: confirm what stays, what belongs to Pat, and what isn't needed. Get real used prices on the larger lights if they matter.
4. Costs and obligations outside Mercury: business insurance, tax prep, the California LLC tax, the three failed ClckPay/SDCCPM payments ($3,930.78; confirm nothing is owed), prepaid bookings and card balances.
5. Subtenant: the sublease document, the landlord's consent, and the end date.
6. Transfers: the Peerspace host account is a shared login, so swap its email and payout to the buyers (reviews stay with it). Then hand over the Google Business Profile, phone numbers, Peerspace host account, Instagram (renamed, not new), ShareGrid if wanted, Google Ads, Bookabl, Innago, domain and redirect, booking-system license, and the forward from amigostudiosoceanside.com to the new brand.
7. Paperwork: check the operating agreement's buyout terms, then do the purchase agreement and the lease documents together. Get short written confirmations from Jeremiah and Beau that they hold no interest in the current business.
